

Lieutenant Colonel Jerad T. Warren is the commander of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps, Detachment 980 at Marquette University. He oversees all facets of recruiting, training, and education for about 70 Air Force Officer Candidates per year. In 2003, he graduated from the United States Air Force Academy with a Bachelor of Science in Economics. He then entered into the Combat Control Pipeline in Hurlburt Field, Florida. During this time, he completed the United States Army Airborne School, Air Force Air Traffic Control School, the Air Force Combat Control School, Army Combat Dive Course, and Special Forces Military Freefall School. In December of 2008, Captain Warren assessed Q t (V el excede